WEDNESDAY EVENING, APRIL 17.

GEN. GRANT AND THE PRINCE OF WALES.

"A correspondent of the London Times says: 'An incident came to my knowledge the other day of the pains the General took to deny a story that he was offended at the way in which he had been treated by the Prince of Wales. Some mischievous paper printed a story that the General was angry because, at Marlborough House, at dinner, he was not permitted to sit next to the Emperor of Brazil, but was degraded down the table into the society of mere peers like Lord Salisbury and Lord Beaconsfield. The general promptly denied the story, and said that no one could have shown him more attention than the Prince of Wales, and that he had carried away the best possible feelings toward the Prince. His trip to Scotland interested him deeply, more especially his visit to Danforth, and later on, 'There is no man livelier,' he said, 'for whom I have a higher esteem than the Duke of Argyll.' He looks forward to his visit to Ireland with great pleasure, and will make that tour as he goes home. At a time like this, when the good relations between nations are the subject of anxiety, it is pleasant to note the emphatic and cordial friendliness of a man so illustrious as General Grant, who for sixteen years swayed so vast an influence in America, and who—unless every indication would fail—is still destined to be a most powerful, if not again a dominant, force in the politics of the country."

A GENTLE HINT.—In our style of climate, with its sudden changes of temperature—rain, wind and sunshine often intermingled in a single day—it is no wonder that our children, friends and relatives are so frequently taken from us by neglected colds, and the deaths resulting directly from this cause. A bottle of Bosche's German Syrup kept about your home for immediate use will prevent serious sickness, a large doctor's bill, and perhaps death. By the use of three or four doses. For curing Consumption, Hemorrhages, Pneumonia, Sore Throat, Croup or any disease of the Throat or Lungs, its success is simply wonderful. As your druggist will tell you, it is sold in every town and village on this continent. Sample bottles for trial free; regular size 75c.
